2. [Redacted] acts as an alternate cryptographer and must have access to the Detachment A Signal Center to discharge his cryptographic duties. [Redacted] is the teletype maintenance person at Detachment A and must also have access to the Signal Center for lengthy periods of time while performing maintenance duties.

3. The four cryptographers currently assigned to Detachment A may not be of sufficient number to provide around-the-clock coverage. As the traffic volume pattern becomes evident, the Detachment A Communications Chief may be compelled to detail other technical personnel to Signal Center duties. At such time as this becomes necessary, immediate action must be taken to provide special intelligence clearance for the required number of technical personnel who may be assigned Signal Center duties.
